WHO: Attention Families Interested in Summer Nature Camps in Parks

WHAT: Record Summer Camp Enrollment, a Few Nature Camps Still Available

Cincinnati Park summer nature camps have record enrollment for the 2010 camp season – with already more than 1600 children registered to spend a week in a nearby park this summer! That compares to 1500 nature campers in prior years. Perhaps our parks have been Cincinnati's best kept secret* on the entertainment front, but the secret is certainly out on the great value and experience with Park Board Nature Education camps!

New this year, parents can use the internet to register and pay on line. To view the camps still open and enroll your camper today, visit www.summertimecampregistration.cincinnati-parks.com

Sample list of Park Board nature camps that still have openings:

LaBoiteaux Woods Parade Camp for ages 7 – 11 years old

June 29 through July 1 and be in Northside parade on July 4th (fee $45 city/$55 non-city)

Eden Park Nature Camp for ages 5 – 12 years old

July 6 through 9 (fee $40 city resident/$50 non-city)

Burnet Woods Astronomy Camp – “Back to the Moon” for ages 9 – 12 years old

July 19 through 23 (fee $55 city resident/ $65 non-city)

Stanberry Park Nature Camp for ages 5 – 12 years old

July 6 through 9 (fee $50 city resident/$60 non-city)

GET IN ON THE BEST KEPT SECRET - CINCINNATI PARKS

According to Northern Kentucky University's annual Cincinnati Entertainment Survey, Parks are Cincinnati's best kept entertainment secret in the region. Now, the Cincinnati Park Board invites you to get in on the secret – visit any of our 75 parks to take a walk, have a picnic, send your child to nature camp, or just relax and listen to a local band during our FREE Park Concerts. Visit our Events Calendar for dates, times, locations and directions at www.cincinnati-parks.com .
